The entrance is beautifully framed by ponds either side to create a real sense of entry. There is substantial and complimenting new native planting at the entrance as well as through the subdivision and the surrounding golf course. Sites are level and ready to build on with services (power, water, drainage and telecommunications) within the road berm for contractors to connect into when building your home. Retaining between sites are in Keystone Compac pavers and there is also a footpath running through the subdivision and up to the clubhouse with street and bollard lighting.

Q. Are there design guidelines and covenants?

A. Yes, there are design guidelines and covenants which provide a framework for owners to produce a high standard of architectural and landscape design that contributes to the overall subdivision. The intent is to encourage a diversity of design solutions but at the same time produce a unified and balanced community that reflects the rural character and setting of Fairview Estate that integrates well with the landscape and golf course as well as creating privacy between dwellings. They also ensure that properties and homes continue to be maintained to a high standard once completed as well as for any future alterations or additions. These are seen as an important measure in protecting the amenity of the subdivision as well as the investment of other owners and the owner of the golf course.

Q. What is the process when I want to build a home?

- A. A Design Review Committee (“DRC”) has been established to review and approve house designs to ensure that they are compatible with the subdivision as a whole and comply with the design guidelines and controls. The design review process is as follows:
- a) Owners or their designers submit their preliminary design to the DRC along with payment of a bond;
 - b) On receipt of the DRC response, either proceed to final submission or resubmit the preliminary design with revisions;
 - c) Submit plans for final submission;
 - d) On receipt of the final design approval, apply to Western Bay of Plenty District Council for building consent;
 - e) At the completion of construction and landscaping (including any fencing), submit a completion inspection form to the DRC. This shall include a copy of the code of compliance certificate from Western Bay of Plenty District Council;
 - f) The DRC will then issue an acceptance letter and initiate refund of the bond (less costs associated with the review and approval process).

Q. What roof and cladding materials can I use?

- A. Roofs can be either concrete tiles, metal tiles or long run roofing to be in various shades of grey. Cladding can be painted plaster over brick or an approved cavity system and horizontal dressed timber/linea boards or such other materials approved by the DRC can be used for features. There is a carefully selected colour palette for The Drive that owners can choose from for external colours to blend in harmoniously with the local environment.

- A. Construction of the home must commence within 12 months of the settlement date of the property and be completed (including landscaping) within 12 months of commencing works. Once works start they must be continuous. This is to ensure that homes within The Drive are started and finish within a similar timeframe.
